However, not all of these features are necessary to enjoy the game. They are needed only if the child wants to use all the features offered by the program. In some cases, parents try to develop the child in only one function, ignoring others. This is not always a mistake. Some parents believe that the intelligence of the child will be higher if it is developed in one direction. However, a child who is not given enough attention in the development of all functions may face serious problems in the future. So, for example, if a child is not taught to communicate, it will be more difficult for him to establish contacts. fffad4f19a
